A MEMORIAL BY THE CANTON

"I am so proud of having selected As Nora Jo Fades Away, as BeeBe's Book Club selection for our New Orleans sisters Book Club Winter 2011 Selection. Ms. Cerasoli tells her story with wit and truth while reminding us of God's love, but not because she is using words about GOD's provisions, because she is showing us, by caring for Nora Jo. This is truly living the principles of Christ. I can't wait to turn back the pages each night of this book that is so foretelling of the future we may face with an aging loved one."

December, the Month of Celebration
Evaletitia Ellis, Editor-In-Chief

When I think of December, I first think of my birth, then Christmas. Over the years, I came to know the month of December as more than a time of celebration of my birth and the birth of Jesus, the Christ. It is more of a celebration of life, love, adoration, respect for God and all mankind. It is the one month in a year that most nations are on one accord and try to find some sort of communion with peace. Around the world, some things seem to be in common in the month of December. That is, a time of reflection, hope, love, peace and balance. Although some find the month of December to be the most difficult period in their life, the atmosphere is full of love and hope. Looking deeper into December and all its celebrations, people seem to be grasping the understanding that the celebration is more about Love and Sacrifice. As with most everything in life, some will overindulge in the meaning and purpose of the season. Although traditionally it has been recognized as a time of giving, receiving and remembrance of the birth of Jesus, ultimately it is about Love for one another. During this time of celebration, there are those who suffer deep emotional distresses due to the atmosphere of Love. This atmosphere is felt most during this time of year, thereby overflowing the emotions we tend to suppress throughout the year. For some, Love is difficult to handle because they have not learned that we are Love. Fighting against the nature of yourself only causes distress to the mind and body.

Let's celebrate and embrace who we are. Loving ourselves and one another will open up new realms of possibilities for us during the years to come. No one should ever feel alone, unloved or unwanted in this world. There are far too many of us on earth to not enjoy Love, even if we think it's from a stranger. Get out, volunteer and get involved with the good that's going on in the world. It's your time to shine and make a difference in someone's life! Remember, you may be entertaining Angels unaware, and doing so will bring you peace that surpasses all human understanding. In the New Year, let's celebrate awareness of who we are!

Every Christian Needs a Vision Plan by Rhonda Jones

Write the Vision: Habakkuk 2:2 counsels us to write the vision on the wall and make it plain so that those who read it will run with it. "Though the vision may tarry, it shall come to pass," says the Lord. This scripture implies several important truths. First, God wants us to create a written vision for our life, and He wants us to post it so that it will inspire us as well as others. Secondly, having a vision creates movement. Those with a vision are more likely to take action and do what is necessary to fulfill their goals. Having a vision can also galvanize people to stand with you and offer support. Lastly, God said that your vision shall be fulfilled at the appointed time. Therefore, creating a vision plan is a guaranteed recipe for success.

Speak to Your Vision: Your words have power and are alive.

An Ear to Hear: Be sensitive to individuals, resources, information, and literature that come across your path.

Good Fight of Faith: Be careful not to let negative thoughts pull up your seeds before they have had time to take root and grow a harvest.

A Clear Focus: Your vision should truly reflect your authentic self. You can always update your vision as you accomplish your goals or change your desires.

Seek Balance: Strive to create balance by creating a vision of how you'd like each quadrant of your life to look, and resist the temptation to put all your energies in one basket.

Stomp Out Fear: Get still, quiet your mind, and ask yourself, "Is fear hindering me from moving forward?" Don't let fear stand between you and your dreams.

Live in the Moment: Live consciously by giving your full attention to everything you do. Reinvent Yourself: Just like an artist paints a new picture using a blank canvas, you can reinvent yourself and create the life you want.

Creating a vision plan and then nurturing your plan by following the tips in this article will help you to make your dream a reality. Proverbs says that where there is no vision the people perish or have no restraint. A vision plan will add meaning to your life. It will give you a sense of purpose. BB
